accumulated points, to place 1st in the weekly rankings, and to have the chance to win the grand prize;

For clarity, similar campaigns are implemented in the countries mentioned above and all the participants enrolled in the Contest may be declared weekly winners if they fulfill the necessary conditions and also will participate in the drawing lot for the Grand Prize.

According to the points accumulated by the participants following the predictions made during each Competition week, the first participant in the ranking will be designated winner, according to the accumulated score. A reserve will be designated alongside him/her, representing the second place participant in case the participant designated as winner is not validated.

If two or more participants, following the accumulated score, occupy the 1st position in the weekly ranking with equal points, the winner will be designated according to the following criteria which will be applied in the following order:

- Depending on the number of invitations that participants have sent to other potential users;
- Number of predictions made in the mini-championship;
- The number of rivals that participants have on the YEPP platform;

If after applying the above criteria the winner cannot be determined among the participants with equal points, the winner will be determined by drawing lots through the random.org system, within 2 (two) days after the end of the mini-championship.

Winners will be announced every Wednesday after one week of the competition on: www.yepp.com/RoadtoPrague by email to the participant's email address associated with the account created on the YEPP application, as well as through the weekly newsletter that will be sent to all participants at the email addresses with which they registered in the contest.

GRAND PRIZE

If the same participant is the winner of more than one Weekly Prize, that participant will enter the drawing with the number of entries corresponding to the number of Weekly Prizes won in the Weekly Prizes.
